

Our ETF suite is strategically designed to focus on specific market segments, geographies, sectors, factors and themes to provide unique building blocks for constructing diversified portfolios. Rather than investing in pure market cap indexes, which usually are tilted towards specific sectors, our CORE & Enhanced Factor ETFs implement an equal sector weighting methodology to provide a better foundation to strategically build customized portfolios. This methodology provides the opportunity to achieve better risk adjusted returns when utilized with more niche ETFs which provide exposure to specific alternative asset classes, countries, sectors and themes.

Shares of Exchange Traded Funds (ETFs) are not individually redeemable and owners of the shares may acquire those shares from the ETF and tender those shares for redemption to the ETF in Creation Units only, see the ETF prospectus for additional information regarding Creation Units. Investors may purchase or sell ETF shares throughout the day through any brokerage account, which will result in typical brokerage commissions.

There are risks associated with investing including possible loss of principal. Asset allocation does not assure a profit or protect against down markets. The stocks of smaller companies are subject to above-average market price fluctuations. There are specific risks associated with international investing, such as currency fluctuations, foreign taxation, differences in financial reporting practices and rapid changes in political and economic conditions. Real estate investments are subject to specific risks, such as risks related to general and local economic conditions and risks related to individual properties. Fixed income securities are subject to interest rate risk, prepayment risk and market risk. Commodity trading is highly speculative and involves a high degree of risk. Funds focusing on a single sector generally experience greater price volatility.
